

settled in the time of Christ, and we don't know how long before. The documents should be regarded as prima facie evidence, even were they not divinely authenticated. It does not rest with us to prove everyone of their statements. No one of them has been proven untrue. "It does not prove that a thing is not true because you can't prove that it is". With the divine authority which they claim, and which we as Christians accept, they should be for us infallible and authoritative.
