

such that receipt of such a telegram ;immediately cast Meeter from the heights in lowest of regard in which he had been presented to the Board, to the/~~lowest~~ depths. Under investigation these circumstances further/was made to get someone to teach the theology that Kuyper had been teaching during the first year, and a man who had been John Murray, who had taught for a year at during the previous year had taught theology at Princeton, was invited to come.

Murray soon showed himself to be an excellent teacher. At this time all the faculty were married except Dr. Machen, John Murray and myself. The result was that many Murray and I soon began the practice of eating/~~many~~ of our meals together. I /can truly ssay that I have never had a friend whose companionship I enjoyed more than I did that of John Murray on these occasions. There were a number of diffeernt restaurants whre we would eat. He always had a favorite seat in every one of them.

I personally never cared where I sat, so I would always let him lead to the place he want to sit.

Murray had a custom soon developed a routine on Sunday of attending certain particular churches in a definite order. I am not sure how many; my impression is there were five or six churches, several of them being the so-called Covenanter churches, that he would attend in a regular ~~me~~ order.

Murray never would take any means of public conveyance on Sunday. He was very strict on this. If he were to preach in Camden on a Sunday he would go over on Saturday and come back on Monday, staying two nights in Camden. Once when he was to preach twice at Mr. Freeman's church in South Phila° he and I were guests of the Freemans at the noon meal. After the meal he found that he had left his notes/^{for the evening service} in the hotel room where he lived . This would require a walk of a mile and a half each way to get them. Mrs. Freeman suggested that he give her the key to his room and tell where the notes were, because she said she could ride on the street car both way, on the trolley car, and (nc) heads) this would save him the long walk. However, he and I walked up and got the notes and walked back.
