

Sennacharib went back to his homeland and as soon as he got there, perhaps not that day; perhaps he had one night's sleep before it happened. But the next day ~~he~~ went into the house of his god and there his sons came and slew him with the sword. It came right after the other. Somebody says, no, there is twenty years in between. You say, how perfectly absurd. It is stated one, two, three, these things happen. They must have happened right immediately one after the other. The situation is exactly like that when somebody reading the Old Testament before the time of Christ would read that the Lord is going to come. There is going to be a day of vengeance. There is going to be a time when God will work in a mighty way upon this earth. They would say the Lord is coming. There is going to be a day of the Lord. Somebody would say, oh, there is going to be two comings. There is going to be a first coming, a coming to be born in a manger to live among people, to die on the cross. There is going to be a second coming with force to overthrow all unrighteousness and to set up a great kingdom with peace on earth. That person will say, how perfectly silly. There is not a suggestion in the Old Testament of two comings of Christ. Of course, there is only one coming. There is not a reason in the Old Testament to suggest ~~two~~. And yet when the event occurred we had one coming and part of ~~xxxx~~ the predictions were fulfilled and we are told He is going to ~~return~~ return and we look for Him to fulfill the other predictions on His return. ~~xxxx~~ Similarly as we read in the New Testament about His return to this earth there are some who say He is going to return for His church and His church will be caught up to meet Him in the air. There will be the marriage feast of the lamb and seven years later there will be a second phase of the return when He will return with His church to overthrow everything that is wicked on the earth and to set up His kingdom of righteousness and peace. Some say that is perfectly absurd. The New Testament
