

the Midianites, that the Lord sent a prophet unto the children of Israel, which said unto them, Thus said the Lord God of Israel, I brought you up from Egypt and brought you forth out of the house of bondage. And I delivered you out of the hand of the Egyptians, and out of the hand of all that oppressed you, and drave them out from before you, and gave you their land; and I said unto you, I am the Lord your God; fear not the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell; but ye have not obeyed my voice." That's all it says about this prophet. That's the only use of the word in the book of Judges. There are many prophets in Judges which are called by other names. But this is the only use of this word, and this prophet, this is all that we are told in the verse that I've just read, and what prediction did this prophet make that I've just been reading about? Mr. Rao? Mr. Dunzweiler? (He didn't make any prediction.) ~~Esau~~ Exactly. He made no prediction, but he is called specifically a prophet. You might think of it as an implied prediction. He said they disobeyed God, but there certainly is no actual prediction. He said, I've brought you from Egypt and you have not obeyed my voice. And that's all he said. This is another instance fitting in with our definition. The prophet is the spokesman for God. He came and gave a message which God gave to them. That's what the prophet does. So it exactly fits with the definition. It does not include any prediction in this case, but it is specifically called prophet. (Student).

I had not in my outline ~~w~~reached a place where I speak of other terms used for prophet. I think that is the next thing. We were talking about number 3, the meaning of the word, and we didn't look at all the cases by any means, but we looked at enough to get a pretty good idea of what the word means, a mouth piece for God, a spokesman for God, not in the sense of somebody that takes God's part, but somebody to whom God gives a message ~~fre~~ to and the spokesman passes the message on. For today, other terms used.

Number 4, There are other terms used for prophet. And these other terms which are used, one of them is רָאָה , one who sees. רָאָה is a seer, one who sees, along with the common word רָאָה , which is the Qal Active participle. And a second one is נָבִיא , that is a word
