

should be able to say that this happened in ~~just~~ such and such a year. They do say that there was a claim discovered from the time of Abraham which proves that Abraham lived in a certain year because there was a date right on it, 1765 B. C. stamped right up on the corner. Well, I think everything sees the absurdity of that ~~statement~~ statement. It shows how we cannot expect that we would necessarily have exact dates for that time because the very system we use is something of modern development, the system of calling them so many years before Christ. Now just to bring up how it is not such a simple thing in general the matter of chronology. Is there somebody who wouldn't mind just answering a few personal questions just to bring it out? Would you mind, Mr. Sanderson? Will you tell us what your father's full name was? Would you tell us the year he was born? Will you tell us the year he was married? You wouldn't know exactly.

Will you tell us the year you graduated from high school? Very prompt in that. ~~Max~~ Where were you born? Have you always lived there? Where did you move to? In what year? You have lived in 6 - 5 1/2 ever since? Where did you move from there? In what year? I just took this for ~~another~~ illustration of how when you how to figure up in your life what year did this happen, a particular thing happen, you will find that often you have to stop and figure quite a bit. Now, of course, most of you have much less years than I have, but there are many things that I have to think quite a little while so that in ten years of what date the particular thing happened. As you get a little older the area of uncertainty there varies. I think of something that happened three years ago and it ~~seems~~ seems longer ago than something that happened fifteen years ago. When it comes to ~~the~~ naming the exact month or day that something happened in our own ~~lives~~ lives, it is often extremely difficult. I knew of a case just recently where a woman of seventy desired to buy an annuity from the insurance company and these annuities are determined in their
