

OUTLINE

- 1.0 Preface
- 1.1 Introduction Importance of the Subject
- 2.1 Exactly What the Theory Is
- 3.01 Theory a Relic from Attitudes of a Bygone Era of Thought
- 3.11 Skepticism about ancient facts and writings
- 3.12 Wolf and his followers
- 3.13 Attitude toward Troy and Mycenae
- 3.14 Attacks on Cicero's orations
- 3.15 Allegro and the Gospels
- 3.16 Wellhausen on the unhistorical nature of Abraham, Moses, etc.
- 3.17 Far-reaching change as a result of archaeology
- 3.18 Schlegel at Troy
- 3.19 Egypt and Mesopotamia
- 3.20 Old Testament History
- 3.21 Historicism - writings as merely expressing the spirit of the age
- 3.26 Ballads
- 3.31 Source hunting in general
- 3.41 Situation in study of Homer
- 3.51 Nibelungenlied, Beowulf, Piers Plowman, etc.
- 3.61 The Indic epics
- 3.65 Persian literature
- 3.71 Other ancient writings
- 3.81 The disintegration of Shakespeare
- 3.86 Applied to Goethe
- 3.91 General repudiation and abandonment of such views and method
- 4.1 Current dogmatism of supporters of critical theory