

questioned. I'm not sure we can prove. It would be a matter of seeing which would fit the context better. My own inclination would be to think that it would fit better with the idea of him as a boy not knowing, but how to get out of that that he didn't then exist

(5 3/4)

I'd have to see a little more about how expresses it. If there's some note in that I'm not aware of (5 3/4)

Well, we don't learn much about the servant of the Lord here but it is very definitely tied to Israel, isn't it? Very definitely ~~it~~ tied to Israel here. And it is on account of this that Cyrus has been raised up, and what is your next reference after this, Mr. Rubel?

48:20 45:4, that's the one we were just looking at, wasn't it? 48:20? None till 48:20.

That is quite a little jump isn't it? But of course we have 46 and 47 which are dealing specifically with the judgment on Babylon. And then on 48:20 we find that he says "Ye go forth of Babylon, flee ye from the Chaldeans, with a voice of singing declare ye, tell this, utter it even to the end of the earth; say ye, the Lord hath redeemed his servant Jacob." So here it's tied right up again with the deliverance from exile. Jacob is called his servant, you might call anyone that does the work of God a servant, but we have been told the reason he will deliver them is because He has a work for them to do, so that ties it right up with our whole string. This is the reason why they are delivered, why they are rescued, is because they are his servants to do His will. And here they are told to make it known to the ends of the world that God delivers His servant Jacob. W

What is your next reference, Mr. Grauley? 49:3. Now there is a very interesting one. "And said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified. Who is talking here? God is talking, isn't He. He said, and it tells what He said. God is talking. But God is not saying the first four words, is He? Who is saying them? Now if I say Mr. Steele said to me, "You are my friend, Dr. MacRae," you read that, "Mr. Steele said to me, 'You are my friend, Dr. MacRae.'" Someone asks you, who said