

If there is a great intelligence that has created and directs all things it would be unnatural to think that such an intelligence would not act to communicate with the creatures whom He has made. The Bible claims to be such a communication. Does science prove that the statements of the Bible are wrong and therefore it cannot be a communication from the Originator of the things that Science studies.