chapter 4? Chapters 3 and 4? None there. Well, we're restricted to chapters 1 and 2 then. Well now in Chapters 1 and 2 how many times did you find it?

(Student) There are six verses in Genesis 1 and 2 which have this word " " , and the word is translated variously and it is only translated "soul" once, I believe, just in this one in Genesis 2:7. How is it translated in Genesis 1:20?

(Student) Yes. It is not translated soul. Of these six verses the word " " is only translated "soul" once in our English Bible but it is the same Hebrew word, the word " " , and so we have the phrase, " " " which is translated "a living soul" and this phrase also occurs in a number of these instances as you know. In quite a few of them the exact phrase occurs.

Let's look rapidly. How many of you have your Hebrew Bibles here? I hope most of you have but some haven't progressed that far in Hebrew; because every now and then we'll want to look to it. Mr. ----? (Student) Yes. (Student)

Strange that that . (Student) Well, it would be " " here. " " is only in Daniel. Daniel and Exra. It would be the Hebrew part we would be interested in, and the word is only translated "soul" in one of the six verses in these two chapters in which it occurs. Mr. Christopherson speaks of additional emphasis not so very much further on in which he found that they also not translated it "soul". Translated it "^{life}light" rather than "soul".

Now that word " " then is not exactly our modern English word "soul".

It would seem to be nearer "life" than "soul", but you notice that in a number of places in these two chapters it is translated "creature". Now I think what is most vital about it is to see exactly how the word is used or exactly how the phrase is used. In Genesis 1:20 we have this phrase used as translated "living soul". In 2:7, and there it is translated, "And God said, 'Let the waters bring forth abundantly the living creature'". " " and that " " is translated "that has life", the soul that--literally, "the soul of life". Now this soul of life then, or living soul, which is-- man became, in Genesis 2:7 is already used, the whole phrase in Genesis 1:20
