

the spirit of hatred because when he was a student in high school his brother was convicted of complicity in an attempt to murder the Czar, and was hanged for it. W Lennin devoted the rest of his life to a determination to destroy the Czar, to destroy the upper ~~class~~ class in Russia. He studied Marxist ideology and himself worked out a system of control whereby the men moved by the spirit of hatred could be moulded into ~~anx~~ and where they could be controlled and directed by a small group. That is the essential feature of communism today. A situation where a small group can lead the others so that they blindly follow, and that if they don't they are immediately liquidated out. No chance to cause others to follow them. It's not 100% successful, but it has had a remarkable degree of success.

When a man joins the communist movememt he turns over his conscience, he turns over his intelligence to the direction of the leaders of it. He becomes a puppet in their hands. I picked up a little book called The God that Failed, and I wish that that book could be reprinted in thousands of copies. It was the account written by eight different men who had become communists and then had left it. All had left it for this reason: that having gotten into it, and reaching a very high position in it, they came to a point where they saw that even though all in this level were agreed that a certain thing should be done, someone higher than them said the opposite, and rooted out ruthlessly one of their number simply because he chose (the upper ne) chose to do so, and the rest of them had to bow to him and say, Yes. Or be liquidated. And these people, each individually, had come to see the absolutely monolithic nature of its control and in disgust had left it. That was the story of each of these experiences of each of these different individuals. But it showed the clever organization which Lenin worked out.

I read in the paper the other day, that when the North Vietnamese took over Vietnam-- took over in North Vietnam, there was a man there from Siagon who was visiting his parents, and he was there a few days and then managed to escape. He tells what he had done and how the next day, the Communists took over this city of Whey, and they took all the able-bodied men and took them out in the country and gave them paper and
