

wish to continue in the11 $\frac{1}{2}$, I have found many things which I might possibly have questioned which have been questioned by one or other members of the committee on the ground of their own study of these particular matters. I have found a most open-minded attitude in the committee on the question of how the notes should be. Now of course this is not a new Bible we are getting out. This is simply a revision of Dr. Scofield's work, and it would be wrong to make great basic changes in it, and I would be strongly opposed to it, but every note, every heading, every marginal reference is being considered, and it takes a long time, and it is very interesting, and in the discussion we usually divide, it will be 6 - 3, or 7 - 2, but you never know who the seven are going to be and who the two are going to be, because it is very12 $\frac{1}{4}$ We have had very interesting discussions, and I had a most stimulating three days. Somebody said that at this meeting we should go through the Scofield Bible through the book of Job, and then we all were to send notes in up to Job, and then I said, Let's send in up to the Pentateuch first, and get those straight, so everybody sent in recommendations regarding the Pentateuch, and then we thought we'd try to get through the Pentateuch in the three days, and actually we got through the book of Genesis in the three days. So when there was a little discussion with the man from the Oxford Press about some details of the contract.....13....., he said, In view of the rate at which the work is going, and the thoroughness with which it is being done, he said, I think you will find that you are getting a lot more work out of these men, than the flat sum that you are paying each one of them would ordinarily get, so he said, If some of the details of the contract aren't just the way, why there's nothing to worry about, and the representative agreed. The representative of the Press is a graduate of Yale Divinity School, and his viewpoint is a little different I think from that of some of the members of the committee, but he is not a member of the editorial group...., he is simply the technical arranger of it, but he is much interested in the discussions, and is a very pleasant man indeed to work with. Well, now this I think would come under the category of the matter of the salt, to be sure that our ~~work~~^{message} is right..... to get the work just exactly the best we can andend of McR 1
