

it means that he did wrong in seeing if the physicians could help him. But I think that what it means is that he was putting his trust in the physicians rather than putting his trust in the Lord. God wants us in every situation in life to use the means that are available. One time when the seminary was in Wilmington one of the students came to me and he said, "We're having some meetings in the YMCA." The seminary students had a meeting every Saturday night. No, I guess it wasn't the seminary students - it was some independent organization in which our seminary students were very active. They were merely using the room in the YMCA for the meeting. But they were having different speakers and he said, "We'd like to have you come and tell the story of the rescue of the fliers from Grand Canyon at this youth meeting there next Saturday night. Would you come?" I agreed to do it. Well the time came. I got down there to the meeting. I found that that day he had gone up from Philadelphia to make some inquiries about the chaplaincy after he finished his course and he wasn't yet back. People were beginning to come into the room but there were no arrangements made so one of the other fellows saw nothing was being done so he looked around, got the chairs arranged and then I said to him, "Well now with this story I have to show the pictures and he told me there would be a screen." He said, "Yes, there is a screen here. I guess he was going to get it but he isn't back yet." So he went downstairs and hunted around and got the screen and got things fixed up. Little by little things were arranged and the people came. And one of the other fellows said, "Well, he isn't here to start the meeting. It's already 15 minutes late." So he started it. And they were about

But I should have trusted the Lord. Here I am. The meeting's going all right, everything's fine. How silly I was to get disturbed. I should have trusted the Lord." Well, that was a case of falseness. He had taken the responsibility of that meeting - it was his place to be there. He had invited people, he had given out advertisements - it was his place to be there if he didn't make that trip to Philadelphia. It was his place to see the screen was ready. It was his
