

If we are doing our best we can safely trust God for our children. We do not need to worry. We do not need constantly to wonder whether we are doing things right or not. We simply do the best we can and God will work all things out in accordance with His will.

~~There~~ There is here a principle that is important in all aspects of life. We cannot control our lives or the lives of those with whom we are associated. Our ~~ability~~ power, our ability, our wisdom, is far too little. There are many circumstances over which we have no control. We cannot predict what is going to happen in the lives of our families or in our own lives. We have ~~not~~ no right to be careless or lazy. We must do our best. We have equally, however, no need to worry, for we know that if we love God and follow Him He will work things out in accordance with His will, and all things will work together for ~~a~~ good to those that who ~~ix~~ love Him.
