

this vs. means. And I'm sure when he tells me it will sound so simple that I'll say why didn't he have sense enough to see that when I read it for myself. But in the ~~mean~~/ meantime I put it on the side here as a problem which I don't understand and which fortunately is not near the center of our faith. But I think it is rather near the center of our effectiveness as Christian workers to realize that there is going to be a great deal in the Bible that we can't understand and a great deal that we don't understand and the Lord wants us to take what we do understand and to bring it to people. And the Lord wants us to take what we don't understand and to try to understand it, but not to get people confused over it and not to give it a place of importance beyond what it deserves in our ministry. We have had ~~graduated~~ graduates of this seminary who have gone out and taken churches in which people went to an extreme in their interpretation of the meaning of the parts of the tab. Now God so made the tab. that it would present certain truths to the minds of his people, and it was very important that those truths be presented to them. But it also ~~was~~ was necessary to build the tabernacle so it would stand up and so it would last, and so it could be carried. And you sometimes cannot be sure whether something in it is meant to convey a meaning or is simply a part of what was desirable in making a building that could be used and could be transported. And we've had students who have graduated and taken a church and people went to an ~~in~~/ extreme in giving meanings to a portion of the tabernacle to which we have no reason to think they have meanings, and these students felt it was their great duty in life to get the people out of that extreme attitude of looking at the tab. And with all the wonderful truth that God has given us to present I felt very disappointed that they should feel that that was their duty in life. Our duty is to present the message of how Jesus Christ died that we might be saved from sin through Him. Our duty is to draw people to study the Word for themselves and to get the blessings and the lessons that God has for them in it. To show them how to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the Lord. And when we find minor divergencies and minor errors of interpretation which people make it is good to give an occasional statement and a direct help occasionally, to help improve them in their
