

~~and~~ and caused them after their long flight, tired and rather half blinded to fly about 6 ft. from the earth, great multitudes of them, and provided these tremendous amount of meat for the Israelites. It is a miracle that God wrought in causing it to come when He said ^{He} it would, in causing it to be greatly increased in amount, in causing a thing that happened once in a while to happen right at that particular time to fit in ^{with} ~~with~~ His plan. We can know that God may work something that is supernatural for any one of us. He may do something that we can't possibly understand, but we do know that he takes the ordinary things of life and moulds them and directs them in accordance with His plan, and that they fit together with His purposes and He will do that for every one of us if we keep our eyes, on Him.

2. The Superabundance. God gave them what they asked. He gave them far more than they asked. Ps. 106 says that He granted their request and sent leanness into their souls, and how often that may happen in our lives, if we set our affection ~~our~~ desire on something other than His glory, and we become so obsessed with it. We've just got to have this. We/d/ just can't stand it if we don't have this. God may give it to us, and it may become bitter in our mouths. God wants us to long for His ~~purpose~~ purposes and His accomplishments primarily and then He will give us everything that He knows is good for us. And so we have

3. The Disasterous After Effects. We will then go on to

G. Rebellion among the Leaders. I put Num. 11 and Num. 12 together, because while there is a space of time between them it is the same general movement. There is rebellion and dissatisfaction first on the outskirts of the camp. Next within the camp itself affecting a great no. of people. But then in Ch. 12 we find it coming right in among those who were Moses' close associates.

1. The Seriousness of the Situation. My own familiar friend has lifted up his hand against me. The seriousness of the situation. The wounds that I received in the house of a friend. That is an experience that everyone will have in life
