

that was formed --- founded by Wm. Carey, and he went in there and he went in the chapel and he heard in the chapel a talk about how all men are brothers and there is truth in every religion, and we musn't feel that our religion has more truth than other religions have. He visited a class ~~at~~ and he heard the higher criticism taught. He heard the Word of God torn to pieces and he thought what a difference from the days of Wm. Carey that great servant of Christ. Then the man who was showing him around took him up into the library and showed him their fine library, and he took him over to one side and showed him a shelf, and he said, There's the greatest treasure of our library. He said, There are the very dictionaries, and grammars and translations made in his own handwriting there in our library. And the man said, he could almost as this man said that , he almost felt as though he could hear the spirit of Wm Carey behind him saying, My leanness, my leanness, Woe unto me, the treacherous dealers have dealt treacherously, yea the treacherous dealers have dealt very treacherously.

We're all familiar with the great commentaries of John Calvin -- the exeget of the Reformation he is called even by those who do not adopt all of his views. He was ~~at~~ the greatest exegetical scholar of the Reformation period. He was a great leader in the work of Geneva, a great educator, a great preacher, a great theologian. But perhaps it is less known how John Calvin was a great evangelical leader in his desire to spread the Word of God through ~~France~~ France, through the areas which used the languages in which he had been brought up. And John Calvin trained men there in his college in Geneva and sent them up into France to win souls to the Lord there in France. And these men, some of them were seized, some of them were burned at the stake, but others of them kept on preaching and spreading the Word of God. And the time came when one day in the park in Paris a little boy began to ^{sing} ~~at~~ one of John Calvin's hymns. And then someone else took it up, and someone else took it up, and pretty soon there were thousands of the people in the park there singing this hymn. ~~It~~ It was one of the Psalms that John Calvin had translated into French poetry for singing. In Southern France there were times when you would have a great Roman Catholic celebration in the big cathedral where there would be some of the great Roman Catholic leaders there to hold
