

I am sure this was in Isaiah's mind at this time when God gave him the vision, and Isaiah was sitting somewhere and he saw the heavenly temple and there in the temple he saw the Lord sitting upon a throne high and lifted up and he heard the seraphim crying one to another, Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hosts!

You know anyone who has ever accomplished much for the Lord must really see the Lord, must have a feeling, not merely that he knows about Him, but he must really have an intimate relationship with the Lord. He must feel God's majesty, he must feel God's greatness, he must feel God's holiness. I think that this description gives us a good idea of how Isaiah was impressed with that. We can go out to try to do religious work, and we can think we are serving the Lord. But we must really know the Lord and we must be conscious of His presence.

I had a girl working for me as secretary a good many years ago who previously had worked for a chemist in the DuPont Co. for a short time. This was a very bright girl, not very highly educated, but an excellent secretary, and she told me how she worked for this fine chemist there and she did the work, the typing, and the stenography and that he was very well satisfied. But she wasn't satisfied. She was constantly referring to chemical terms and she wished she knew something about them, so she asked him if he would recommend to her ^{a book that would} ~~about the work~~ give here a little background on the subject. He recommended a book which took up the chemical elements one by one, and it would take up an element and tell a little about its make up, about its function, about the way it works, about how it was originally discovered. She said every chapter in the book ended with the praise of the marvellous mind of the man who had discovered these things
