is used consistently, and in the second the name "God" is used consistently. And I passed al a little note to the lawyer and I said, "I suggest you ask him this question: Turn to the account of Abraham in Egypt in Genesis 12, and tell us how many times any name for God is used." And the professor turned to it, and he looked at it. "Why," he says, "I guess there's only one instance," he says. "There's only one case. It says once 'Jehovah'." It's consistent all right; it's used once. But that's the way with so many of these arguments. When someone gives an argument against the Word of God don't you take what they say. Look at the facts. And when you look at the facts, nine cases out of ten, they prove not to be the way they 发展,如此说在李广· 唯一学品等等等的的变化,更像的激化和感染的。 "我说'我'这一点的不知,我可以说话,这样说话,这个 sounded when the argument given. And that's true of an attack on any Christian doctrine. Oh, how easy it is for people to be bowled over simply by hearing people LATE THE THE SECURE TO make statements without support. And in that connection let megjust suggest that त्रकार क्षेत्र हर वर्षेक्षा बाहरण हाहा अतः । १८०१ हता when you hear an aspersion on the character of some leader, of those who are NEW SERVICE SACTORESTATIONS DONNERS SERVICE standing for the Christ; don't just let somebody say, "Oh, if you knew what I know isent the milit of available to the est with the about him. If you knew what I know - !! co You say What is it you know? And series in a large state of the set of the series of the se press it back, and get the facts, and nine times out of ten you'll find it's the Dovil's lie, and has no foundation at all to it. ស់ សុខ្ ចុំងឺកា ការពេល ប្រុស្ធាល់ សុសស្គាល់ សុសស្គាល់ សុស្ធាល ប្រុស្តិ

But now I wanted to refer to this argument about these alleged "parallels"/," or duplicate stories. Do you think it possible that Abraham could have said this about Sarah in Egypt, and then done the same thing in the land of the Philistines? And that approximately the same course of events would happen in each case? Well, look into your own life, and if you have some particular failing, my guess is that you find in you fall into that sin/not onde, but five or six or a dozen cases. And look into history. I like to think about what would happen if somebody 500 years from now after this country had disappeared, and we knew only a little about the history of this time, like we dek do, perhaps, about Biblical times, were to read in a book that the man who was elected President of the United States in 1960 was shot in the South by a Communist sympathizer, and was succeeded by a man whose name was Johnson who had formerly been senator from a southern state which began with the letters "Te."
