

I gathered that from what he told me. He went to school in England. He went to college, he learned there the things he should tell the people in India, and he went to India as a missionary. Then he told me, I went to India as a missionary and when I started telling people things about the Bible, they said, Do you really believe that? Do you think that really happened? And he said, I didn't think it had really happened. And he said, They asked me, Is that true? And I stopped and thought about it and I said, No I don't believe it is true. He said, The people I went to do missionary work with they converted me. I came to the conclusion I had no message to give them! So I went back to Great Britain. When I talked to him he was teaching religion at Oxford University and he told me most of the Americans who came to Oxford to do graduate work, took some of his courses.

God has called us to be His representatives, but the important thing is not what we learn about methods or what we learn about the place we are to work, because the field is the world, and the work is everywhere. But what we primarily need is to learn to know His Word. So that is what we put our emphasis upon here. We wish we could give you a year just studying about the missionary need. And we wish we could give you a year of training in counselling. Beside college, etc. But the thing we need is to know God's Word and three years is a mighty short time to learn really to know God's Word. There's a verse in 2 Timothy that I'm sure all of us have heard --- 3:16 "All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable . . . . that the man of God may be perfect . . . unto all good works." I'm sure we're thoroughly familiar with that verse, but my guess is that to most of us it is simply a verse that says Scripture is inspired. That's surely a great truth. We believe
