

The religion of humanism, the religion of worshipping man is the religion that is being taught actually in most of our universities today. And in many of our public schools. ~~Man~~ Man is the whole of intelligence so far as this solar system is concerned(they think).

People get very excited arguing about evolution, about whether one species develops into another. We're in an unfortunate position because most people think the word "evolution" simply means change, and change is everywhere. You never saw a child that was exactly like the parents. There is always change, and we argue that this change must remain within a certain area. I believe that can be proven. I think it's important that we recognize it. The vital thing is not whether there is change. The vital thing that matters is that everything that happens is established by God, and is continued by God and it's God's purpose that controls. We should recognize that at every single step of our lives.

God is the Creator. Without that there is no understanding of the universe. The famous French existentialist Sartre who was very hostile to any idea of the existence of God said once: When you look at the universe, the greatest problem, the thing that's hardest to understand is why there should be anything there. Why should there be? unless God created it. If God created it it ought to be a vital factor in the life of all of us. We ought constantly to say, You are worthy our Lord and God to receive Glory, and Honor and Power. For you created all things and by your will they were created and have their being.

In this century there has been a tremendous effort to try to remove the idea of a Creator, and one of the judges said just last week that it cannot be taught in the schools that there is Creator, and ruled out a law in the State of Arkansas because he said that's mixing religion with science! Our schools ~~were~~ were begun in order to teach people how to glorify God, and live lives that are in accordance with His will. Most of our American schools in their early days had their start from the churches starting schools in order to bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Most of the great universities that existed as long as 100 years ago, most of them were founded primarily in order to train those who should understand and present the Word of God.

That was the foundation of our educational system, but God has by the authority of this judge and by the attitude of so many today been ruled out of our public schools. What is the future of a nation that denies God? Russia was formerly called the bread-basket of Europe. Those marvellous fields there produced the grain that fed a large part of Europe until the communists took over and declared there is no God, and rooted out all knowledge of God as far as they could. Today the people there could not even exist if it were not for the grain they purchase from the U.S.A. and from Canada and other countries. They could not live while they give most of their effort and resources to try to ~~to~~ develop arms
