

what is wrong. If you can't do/ it, why, discipline is necessary. But that's if you are with a real Christian church. Now occasionally a person goes into a church that is in a terrible situation and tries to build it up, and tries to help them. Occasionally it is good for a man to do that. But when you do that sort of thing, then you can't start with invoking discipline. Then you have to start with trying to win them and lead them along, and realize the dangers

...7...., and that you will have to put up/ with alot of things for a time. But don't put up with them permanently. You can put up/ ^{with} things for quite along time as you are gradually putting people in touch with the knowledge of the Lord God. Trying to bring out in them a desire to really serve Him. Eventually, either, if it is on a small scale, use realdisciple, if it is on a big scale, try to get rid of it, or get out yourself, if you can't succeed. But you don't have to do things at once. You don't have to immediately I have known people who will go along and they will slide with things for ~~his~~ a long time, and then all of a sudden they decide it is necessary to do something, and they stand right up and from this instant, you are either with me or you are ~~ga~~ against me. And people can't move that fast. They can't think that fast. I've known people who ~~sh~~ have done that and succeeded. They have gotten rid of half the church (laughter). But the other half has become a dynamic forceful group, and it has been a good thing. I've known others who have tried it and they have failed, but I think in most of such cases, that a different method of going at it would have had a better effect. Some of the greatest workers, the most effective workers ^{for} ~~of~~ the Lord are dictators. They are leaders who lay down their rules and people follow them. That's the way human nature is made. The sad thing is the person who doesn't have the ability or the knowldege to be a real dictator who is trying to be one. That's where you get8 $\frac{1}{2}$ I think with most of us, I would say there is a very few men that can get away with ~~that~~ sort of thing. Most ~~mp~~ of us are much wiser in every respect. But work along with them. Co-operat. But when you find somebody else who is doing a wonderful work with a ~~xxxxx~~ rod of iron, well, praise the Lord for the work he's doing. Don't feel that your great duty in life is to introduce democracy in his bailiwick.
