sleeping. In the day they would be working. They wouldn't be working in the field ± at night. It was just an utter contradiction. Yet, x Jesus said it and in the last x two or three centuries it becomes a common factor of life that seems km to be perfectly obvious. But before we have this data that we have now , the data of the roundness of the world and the data of theexistande of artificial light, it would seem absolutely contradictory.
Y°u say it is contradiction, they will be in the bed, they will be in the field. It wont be some of the one and some of the other. It wouldn't be in the days of Christ. But today of course it would be obvious. And I think that when the Lord comes this will pxx probably be perfectly obvious.
We will probably wonder why we were ever puzzled ± about it. But right now, I just ±nk don't know the answer, except it seems to ± me that both are found. I think that we should be very, very skeptical , very, very slow to accept anything until we find that it is clearly taught in scripture or clearly proven by human study and experiment. But onece we find it I think that we will accept it and fully understand it. We might get it tomorrow from another passage of scripture. We might not get it until the Lord comes. But when I find most of the great Christian leaders have felt this was clearly taught;/that-is-I-was-- as I look at it it seems to me to be clearly taught, why the apparent contradiction I feel must be omitted. If there was some obvious explanation , the chances xx are one of the careful students but when he gets... You read in the Bible , Every eye shall see Him . What nonsense that must have seemed to people 500 years ago . How ridiculous.
Millions of people all over the earth seeing the Lord. Now, today, we see Kennedy inaugerated at one time. It's perfectly common place. We have a new day that they never dreamed of. They would have taught your were plum crazy ±f. Thirty or fifty years ago that would have seemed contradict±ory.
(Do you have any more to offer there, Clary?) It looks to me as if ± he has
