

Thus we have seen why Reformations are necessary. We have noted three outstanding points of resemblance between the situation that produced the Reformation of the sixteenth century and the situation of today, and have seen how all three were foreshadowed in Matthew 16. May the Spirit of God lead in all the activities of the Twentieth Century Reformation, and enable it to accomplish His purposes for the glory of Christ and for the salvation of souls.