

for a stove and blew it into the cabin, and what sort of a force placed sticks of wood inside the stove and caused them to ignite."

If I were to express questions like this, I am sure that you would look at me in amazement and wonder why I was permitted to walk around freely instead of being confined somewhere. You would say: "It is perfectly obvious that some man cut down the trees. Some man shaped the timber ~~a~~ into the right length and thickness for the walls. Some man made the glass, cut it to the right size, and put it into the windows. Some man
