

has not even asked for such a treaty. He stated yesterday that he was not going to make such an one. You don't do a thing like that unless you are getting pretty frightened, wondering just what's ahead. People all over Europe are beginning to wonder if they are next in line. I heard a speaker last Saturday night telling how it wouldn't do the U.S. the least bit of good to have the atomic bomb. He said that we have got to mobilize a great army in order to let Russia see we have some strength. He said the atomic bomb is no good to us at all because he said that any minute Russia can simply send planes and parachute troops can seize the ridges of the Rhine, and then he said in six days they can take all of Germany with no difficulty at all. We have maybe 50, 000 men there, a 100, 000 maybe. They have perhaps 4,000,000. They can take it with no difficulty whatever, and he said when they do that they have 300,000 American women and children in _____ to the Americans in Germany. He said they can just take them off to Russia and send us lists of which ones in Moscow and which ones are in Leningrad, which ones are in each of the cities. He says we couldn't use our atomic bomb and kill our own people, so he says our atomic bomb is worthless, and all they need to do is march forward and take the rest of the world.

Well, that sort of fear and terror and despair is exactly what you find pictured in this account here. The only difference being that whether the atomic bomb is any good to us or not, we do have it, and these people don't have anything like that. So the isles stood in fear. The very ends of the earth were afraid, and they are all coming together. People ^{who} don't ordinarily work together are forming alliances and making five-power organizations, forgetting some of their petty disputes because of their fear of the greater adversary that is just ahead and in v. 6 they help everyone his neighbor and everyone says to his brother, Be of good courage. Well,
