finding that Harvard was gone, proceeded to found a new seminary at Andover and they founded this seminary at Andover just a few miles from Boston, a seminary which became a very great seminary, which had a great many very outstanding graduates in the course of the next fifty years. Most of the money that was given to Andover was given with very strong stipulations as to how the seminary must remain absolutely true to the faith and they stated the teachings of the, great fundamental teachings of the Bible and the outstanding teachings of Calvinism, as differing on a few points from the wording of the Westminster confession, taking what was then considered as the new school of Calvinism rather than the old school Calvinism, on those points in which the two differed. But Andover became an outstanding seminary from which hundreds of men went out to be great leaders in the religious life in this country and in every continent on the face of the earth. Then toward the end of the last century Unitarianism began to get into the board of control of Andover and gradually took over control of the seminary as has been done with so many seminaries before and since in the United States with the result that eventually Andover was actually moved to Harvard. It had been organized to fight the modernistic teaching of Harvard but in the end it was moved over to Harvard and the president and fellows of Harvard College and the trustees of Andover/<sup>Theological</sup>Seminary joined to form a nondenominational theological school and the main building of Harvard Divinity School today is the Andover building built with money that it got from Andover after the selling of the buildings at Andover. (Student) Oh, no. You see this was at Harvard, and then about twenty years ago, less than twenty years ago, a suit was brought in the courts about this money having been taken by Harvard and Dr. Buswell who was then president of Wheaton College, made a great effort to get the money which was given for the Andover fund in order to establish his seminary at Wheaton but that would be true to the faith but the Massachusetts churches didn't like to see the money go outside the state and so they took it away from Harvard, the money that they had received from Andover, and they gave it to Newton,
