

I would like to mention one ~~to~~ other thing about him, <sup>which</sup> ~~he~~ contributed greatly to his <sup>LEO</sup> ~~reign~~ name, and that was that in the situation which came in his time he had the opportunity and used it very wisely of taking a place as the protector of the christina and in fact as the protector of Rome itself. The protector of all the people of Rome not only the clergy. And now this opportunity came about from two different things which accured, one of them was the invasion of the Huas, we mentioned when the Goths 75 years before this time began pushing in the empire they said that a wild people was attacking them in the woods and this people was coming and attacking from the other side against the realm which the Goths were fleeing befo~~re~~ them in terror and they asked to be allowed to come into the Roman empire for safety and now these peopple were known as the Huns and these people kept pushing in from Asia against the teutonic peop~~le~~ and finally in the middle of this centyry a great leader of the Huas, Attlia, lead a great army of Huns in to Europe and looked as if he would come to all of Europe. He ~~was~~ a terrific counselor and he was the scourged of God because of the terrific destruction and he boasted that wherever his hosts tramped, grass never grew again, and he was pictured as this but whether this is an all together true picture of his character we have no way of knowing, that is at least the ~~em~~pression that was made, upon the Roman people and the teutonic people and Huns who followed him. Attlia came into Europe and the Roman peoples and the teutonic joined together in terrific fear and there was a great battle fought in 450, in which these folks joined together and they ~~defeated~~ Attlia's army and this put an end to the terrific danger of anniliation ~~of~~ for Roman civilization which came from there~~l~~. But this did not end Attlia's power, he soon re-gathered his forces and while it was not ~~meant~~ to such a menace but the others thought is ~~necessar~~y to keep under arms and to keep a great force ~~from~~ to attackhim and he had enough force he marched ~~destr~~ down into Italy and ~~destroy~~-ing cities and and he came donw n here to Rome and it looks as if he going to destroy Rome. Exzctly what happened now we do not know, the evidence we have from the time is not very great, but we do have seems to show that Leo
