

alright we will bring you back if you will give real evidence of true repentance. And the was that which prevailed in the end. It was always a great question about anybody who had lapsed, now for a man who was actually bishop of Rome, if the Roaman claims have anyting to them about him being the actual man appointed to be the head of the church of Christ and given special leadership and special selected because he was especailly eddowed for the purpose if such a one should actually deny his faith under persecution it would be a terrific denial bf the claim made, for the bishp of Rome, wyou would certainly expect that the Holy Spirti had established the bishp of Rome to be the divinely chosed head of the church He would select one who would not apostasize under persectuion. And even if one of them would come back after persecution and say I did wrong and try to make up for it some way, there would always be evidence that he tried to make atonemnet later for his sin, that would be that he did sin. (question) Now that is bery interesting. The movie director in Hollywodd is quited a strong Roman Catholic has written this book on Paegent of the Popes which has gone through a number of editions, published by a the Rom. Cat. press in N. Y. And in the time of the reformation he was bery frank in telling about the papal errors. He tells for instance how Savonarola dared to oppose the authority of the pope and consequently there was nothing the pope could do but have him burned. Savanarola of course opposed the divinely established pope and so they had to burn him, and then after he mentions the death of Savanarola, his next sentence begins referring to the pope of the time ~~and~~ continued his vicious ways and then he goes on telling who this pope had his mistress there in the vatican with him and how his illegatimate sone the ~~son~~head of the papal armies, tells of some of the terrible things this man did he was very frank about it. That time, my impression was the early days of the church he white
