

Nobody in Egypt will hear anything about it and I will tell you about one case and he described a man who had shown great interest in Christianity, that he really believed in Christ, but that he didn't dare to make public confessions and he said, two days later that man was stabbed in Egypt and evidently in some way they received word of it and sent a wire and he was killed immediately and the missionaries from Moslem hand can everyone of them tell you about instance after instance where a man has been baptized as a Christian and immediately thereafter has been killed. There seems to be rarely any interference to their coming to meetings, they can come to meetings, they can listen, they can but if they are baptized or if they give a public stand for Christ, they are apt to be stabbed or poisoned or something and in most cases it is necessary that they leave the district and go to another area or they are killed. It is a very strict law of Islam. (question 4 $\frac{1}{4}$) I don't know about that. The family does sometimes, but more often it is others. (question) Well, sometimes they do, but other times they don't. But, of course, the whole atmosphere isn't what it was ~~10~~ a long time ago, but they still do sometimes. (question) It means the writings, the thing that you read, the Koran. It is the same word as the word which we use in our Hebrew Bible, the footnote which is to be read and it is the Arabic for that which is to be read. (question) I am quite sure that would not be the view of the orthodox Muslim people, he stressed the terrible (question) Well, we don't know a great deal about it, but he claims to have had visions from when he was a little boy. He had visions at different times and then on his long caravan trips he ~~might have~~ meditated upon things and he came to the conviction that he should preach this and then he came to the conviction that he was the great prophet, exactly how he did it, we don't know. At that time nobody was much interested in it. What we know about him is what he wrote and what later people told about him and there are stresses as a leader and as a fighter, as an organizer, and he was very good at all of these regards. (question 6) Oh, yes, I don't know that he was specifically considered the anti-christ, but
