

Any one who can hold an empire for 40 years , the size of Charlegmane , he was a real influence on history but we are not going to try to go into details on it because the thing that interested us particularly after the death of Louis the Pious , he had three sons who divided up the empire among themselves, ~~the~~ one took the east and one took the west and one took the central. And you begin a division of Charlegmane empire , dividing up into groups and fighting one another and the Caroline line ~~is~~ begins to go down hill, Charlegmane died in 814, so the first fourteen years of the century is really a preceding ~~of the / 10th / century~~ the situation, after Louis reign the Caroline begin to decline, there is no one ~~of~~ of them who is worth mentioning in comparison with Charlegmane, before him there were several men of real outstanding ability, among the majors of the palace of the king of France. But , they latter years of the century see the descendant of Charlemagne divided up into , degenerated to such an extent that they receive such nicknames as Charles the Bald, Charles the Fat and Louis the Sleeper, and so on. (laughter) There is no one of them historically who is given a name that is complimentary. They ~~and~~ have all sorts of names and they degenerated and they disappeared at the end of this century from the scene of history as far as any political importance is concerned. Charlegmane reigned , then as probably that of his son, you may say was a brief career of beautiful global civilization, in which education went forward and the church was greatly improved and helped and you have the beginning of what might have been almost the entrance to the modern ages, it sank back into the darkest period of the ~~11th~~ middle ages, after this disappeared, Charlemagne is a bright spot in this whole area of history. And as a result of his rule you have education much more wide spread than before, and what a large part of the education died out in the succeeding decades there was a begun a number of centuries of education from which came a good bit of thought and discussion ~~which~~ which was quite important in the development of the church. Now during this period the Moslems were reigning in great glory in their areas, you have in Bagdad, you have the from the large section of the Moslems world
