

tions and get them before they get too bad. Now, I don't say that it necessarily works. It depends on whether the men are trying to make it work. But in the congregational system, the pure congregational, there is no means of doing this. In the hierarchical system, of course, there is a means, which may be even more effective than the pres. system, if you have a good man in the hierarchy. Although even there you get some pretty sharp fights within the churches.

(question) It ultimately ends up in the hands of the presbytery if it is a matter of a false doctrine. If it simply is a matter of different desires as to where the church should be, or matters like that, ultimately it lands in the hands of the congregation. But the presbytery has the chance to step in and make sure that ~~it is~~ it is due to some trouble-makers, or ~~if~~ if it is due to some false doctrine. And try to straighten out what it is. Try to straighten out, make the issues clear, and if it finally is a matter that the congregation is divided, half of them think the Sunday School should come before church, and the other half thinking that it should ~~come~~ come after ~~the~~ church, why they wouldn't give an authoritative decision on that. That would still remain up to the congregation.

(question) The church, in the Bible Presbyterian system, the church has the right to withdraw, ~~if~~ if it chooses to do so.. But they have no right to remain a Bible Presbyterian Church, and have a minister who has fallen into heresy, or who has been adjudged to be seriously at fault.

(question) I don't know whether it is a step that way, or if it is a truly pres. picture. And many pres. churches have taken a step toward the hierarchical. I personally think the latter.

(question) We will say that here is an advantage that is good to try to get. And in one system there is a machinery already there for it, which often is not used as it should be. And in the other there is no machinery present, already, but there is a ~~possibility~~ possibility that if the people are aware of this they can look for it. And I don't ~~feel~~ feel that the vital thing is that for you folks to decide which system is the best. I don't think that is our purpose at all. I think the vital thing for you to get an understanding of what the
