

an immediate situation. It has no prediction in it. The first prediction of any length, or of any great amount of futurity in a vision forward to the future after ch.2 is ch.7. And as you look at 7, you find four beasts not five, and you find the 4th beast "dreadful and terrible, strong exceedingly, had great iron teeth (here'd iron again, but here it is only the teeth spoken of as iron) it devoured and brake in pieces." The other one told how ~~he~~ the iron was stronger than any of the previous kingdoms. Here it devoured and brake in pieces, it was diverse from all the beasts before, and it had ten horns. I considered the horns, and behold there came up one among them. There came up among them another little horn, before whom there were three of the first horns plucked up by the roots, and behold in this horn were eyes like the eyes of a man, and a mouth speaking great things and I beheld till the thrones were cast down, and the Ancient of Days did sit, his garment was white as snow, and the hair of his haed like pure wool, ... and the book~~s~~ were opened," and there's the last Judgement. Well, now, this picture then, there are other details that are important to examine what we can get out of the," but before we are much interested in details, we are interested in the big main question. We are interested in details as they related to the big main question. And, over in 24, 23-24. We read the 4th beast is the 4th kingdom on the earth, so diverse from the others, 24, and~~y~~ the ten horns out of this kingdom are ten kings that shall arise. Now the difficulty with the third view ~~with~~ which we had in the second chapter is greater in~~y~~ this chapter, you see. Because the second spoke of the kingdom being divided, and seemed to give a long period. This doesn't say anything about a long period. This is a fourth kingdom, and then there are ten horns that arise, and some intepreters say these ten horns are ten successive kings, of the Syrians, and then the last of them is A.E. And so from the first view they interpret this that the 4th kingdom is the kingdom of A.E. From the second view, we have already seen what they do with the second chapter. We see a difficulty with the th~~e~~ird view of it. Mr. Asay?

AAM: There is a very definite simmlarity between these two. Very great similarity. The big difference would be that in the second one you could easily
