

He will buy without money, without price, and see the wonderful things that are there. A long long covenant

He will make with ~~take~~ those that accept this offer, those that come to the ~~x~~ waters, to buy without money, without price, see the wonderful things that are available. He will make with them a covenant of eternity, a long, long covenant, and how is this covenant ... He is stressing ~~x~~. but the length of time. it is not a ~~x~~ covenant ... that you will take care of them for two years, you can make a covenant that you will work for them for five years. We have all kinds ... but this is not a covenant ... and the next hundred years, and the next thousand years. It is a ~~x~~ covenant ... and so ... but the .. and so the ~~ev~~ covenant ... Yes, we have ... his death represented by the bread and the wine .. When he gives ... he blesses the new covenant ... Covenant was produced by the death of Christ, this eternal covenant ... by those who accept .. I will make an eternal covenant with you ... now these three words are in apposition, covenant is .. he will make with you a covenant ... then in apposition with the covenant ... indicates the ~~fact~~ fact that it is an appositional statement. A further explanation of ~~ix~~ what this ~~ev~~ covenant .. In Hebrew , a ~~xxx~~ construct is immediately followed by the wad ... therefore, it has to be followed .. so they that ... and then you have an adjective that also modifies ... an attributive adjective ... follows the noun but doesn't have to repeat it. So this word -- the adjective comes in English ... and it agrees with it ~~min-number~~ Number, in ~~and~~ gender they are both masculine, and in definiteness, if it ~~modie~~ modifies .. why does this ~~x~~ have an ~~art~~ article and the ~~x~~ other not. It is in construct with a definite noun, but it is definite or indefinite according to the word that is in construction ... David ... banim has to have an article ... is the root from which our word ... Amen comes., means to be firm, to stand, this is it. I stand behind it. It means that's it -- I am determined to ~~x~~ agree with it. Amen means so be it. It is something that is ~~x~~ established, it is
