five predictions in the first verse, all referring to Christ, it is pretty hard to say that they might not be one ... not a common word... You finish that please... Yes, (Q) There is a problem there. He has caused to remember my name. Well, if you cause the people to remember, you tell them about it. It might be mentioned that the King James Version says that he has made mention ... he has caused to remember. It does ^{not} / ^{but} mean that God has remembered. / It means that God has made His name in such that the people will remember, and even from before his birth there are things about him that God is going to cause His people to remember, ~~that~~ well, then you tell them about it. That might, he mentioned that in the King James ... he has caused to remember. It does not mean (13.00) that God has remembered. It means God has made his name such that people would remember, even ... And of course the Lord says he shall be called the Immanuel. Long before he was born his name was given. It is not that God does not remember, but that God causes them to remember. Yes (Q) I do not know whether you should say that the second line is the reason why people should listen ... for it is the thing ~~that~~ that the people should listen to. Both are possible. Listen to me, because the Lord ^{has given me this ...} / I wanted to tell you that the Lord has given me this ... I was inclined a little bit toward the latter / in view of the fact that it goes right on to the next verse. Yes, I would be inclined to think that this is the message rather than this is the reason. Yet, of course, after all, ^{listening to} when everybody is looking for a message, it is important of the message is why they should listen to it... I do not think that this is merely giving his criteria (11.50) as one ... so important... so then the two of course, ~~we~~ ^{the} call to them remind ~~them of~~ us again the fact that they are told that the delegates of the Lord, Oh, listen to me, Who has brought this / Who has done this wonderful this? Listen to me, come and show your proof. Show some predicted future... Come and show if you can predict the future... . Now, we again show... that the Lord...
