

yet perhaps. King Jehu might pause or at least some of the people who followed him might think that his insurrection ~~ought~~ might come to an end like Zimri's and might turn around and take her side. And Jehu recognized the difficulty immediately. Consequently he showed as bold a face as she did in the situation. He looked up to the window and he said, "<sup>who is</sup> ~~He~~ on my side." Now the men with Jehu she had put in the situation. They had to make a choice. If they stay with Jehu and if the great bulk of the people rally around the house of Omri they will, of course, be ~~executed~~ executed as traitors and insurrectioners. On the other hand, of course, if they turn against Jehu and Jehu wins, then they will be up against it. They have to make a decision in a very difficult crisis. They decide to stay with Jehu; but Jehu looks up and puts the same decision to the people in the palace. He says to them, "Who is on my side?" And these people have a choice. They recognize ~~what~~ whether Jehu wins out or not he is at present in control and if they ~~try~~ disobey him and take Jezebel's side it is the end for them. There might be some slight chance of escaping with their lives if they do what he says now. So immediately when they look out, he told them to <sup>throw her</sup> ~~fall~~ down and they turn against their mistress and hurled her down from the window. After this happened he went and ate his meal and drank and then calously then he said, "Go and see this wicked woman and bury ~~her~~ her. "he is the king's daughter." Certainly the attitude of a very caloused hearted soldier, an attitude that is not in any way commended in the Scripture. But when they went to bury her--he was here going directly contrary in his words to the command, not the command but the prediction that has been made, ~~there would be none to bury her.~~ That was the prediction that had been made. He goes against the prediction. Evidently he did not take it as a command, don't bury her. He took it as a prediction as he could have very well have taken it in the preceding few verses. He took this as a prediction. There will be no one to bury her. He said to his servants, go and bury her. So ~~they~~ they went and there was nothing to bury. So the statement that there would be
