NO progeny , no prosperity, no accomplishment...

It seems to me that the fact that it is the direct interpretation is made clarified by the fact that a little further down we read people (7.00) He will see his seed. He will see the result of his action in those who are born into His kingdom/ Throughout the generations. He was cutt off. We thought he was the one who would restore the kingdom of Israel, but now he is gone. There is no effect. But the fact is that he has made tremendous effect. This is a rhetorical question. Here is a generation. Who will consider, who would consider that it would amount to anything? That is theway he was cut off. Again, I say, this was worked out the other way around. Mr. Quek do you have a question? The only things is eith occasionally has the idea of respect 'with respect to'. Most/ usually it indicates an object. It seems to me that both are possible here. You are saying here that with respect to his generation who would consider it? And in that case you would normally repeat the 'it.' That is the way many nations... With respect to his generations, out of these people, who would consider that he was cut off out of the land of the living? They all thought But the fact is that they all thought he was cut off from the land of the living. That to me does not seem to make any sense. It is stating the opposite of what happened. All of his generation thought that he was cut off out of the land of the living. And all of them did , until the believers saw the resurrection. And then they thought that he had not been cut/ off, and that he was cut off only temporarily. The rest thought he was cut off permanently. So that, it does not seem to be impossible, it is entirely possible and many commentaries say that the correct interpretation is that as for his
