

be explained is to assume that the stories in the book of Genesis were handed down by word of mouth for centuries, with absolute accuracy. Since we have abundant evidence that writing was common at the time of Moses, and for 1,500 years before, surely it is much more natural to believe that the stories were actually written down when they occurred.