

① ~~are not warranted~~ When the scientist uses ^{proper} ~~the truly~~ scientific method in dealing with his facts and when the theologian uses ^{proper} ~~the~~ ~~truly~~ scientific method in dealing with the data of revelation, there can be no conflict between the results which ^{each} ~~he~~ secures. It ^{is only} ~~may be~~ that the results are dealing with different spheres of thought and consequently there may sometimes seem to be an apparent conflict through the failure of one or the other to express his thoughts clearly, but when they are correctly stated and properly analyzed it is found that the works of God and the Word of God cannot possibly disagree.

When one or the other goes beyond the facts, and makes unwarranted inferences, that disagreement occurs is found. [to 5d]
